Editor's Message

In recent times, a good deal of concern and attention has been directed at the online open accessibility of high-quality research and knowledge due to the disruption of physical activities (because of Pandemic). As the Editorial Board of International Journal of Law Management & Humanities, our prime responsibility was to ensure that the Journal remains flexible in attending to the rapidly shifting methodical prototypes while also maintaining and intensifying the high academic excellence standards.

With the launch of the Final Issue (Issue 6) of Volume 3, I am proud to acknowledge the International Journal of Law Management & Humanities team's effort. They catered to the increasing demand for Online Publication and worked hard to choose high-quality research and compile this issue consisting of Manuscripts from 5 Advocates, 17+ Academicians, and around 100 Research Scholars/PG and UG Students.

As Pandemic hit us hard this year, I believe that the papers that specifically deal with various aspects of it shall help us fight better. This issue acknowledges the problems happening due to the increasing digitalisation and does not ignore the long pending issues like women's reproductive rights, Sexual Harassment, privacy, police brutality, etc.

Our team has worked countless hours on the journal publication and increased the relevant audience, which led to its indexing at prestigious databases like Manupatra and Google Scholar. I am also proud to acknowledge our efforts to provide Free DOI to all the Manuscripts being published in the Journal from this issue.

On the final note, I would like to thank all the Author(s) who chose IJLMH to disseminate their research and all the readers who supported us throughout. As a part of this Prestigious Board, I assure you that we shall keep working hard and continue to maintaining and intensify the high academic excellence standards.

I look forward to our journey together as we develop IJLMH into its fullest potential.
